Tredway Twinkles.

TREDWAY, VA., Sept. 3, 1901. Dear Herald:-Your weekly visits are always enjoyed, and the first thing one looks for is to see if there is a letter from their P.O. It seems strange that some of your many readers of Tredway don't send you items every week instead of waiting for a semi-occasional

Our neighborhood has been very gay for the past ten days. On Tuesday of last week, there was a lawn party given by the ladies of Olive Branch Methodist church, at the residence of Mr. Dibbrell Elam. The beautiful grove was illuminated with Japanese lanterns, showing with advantage the tables fairly groaning beneath their weight of good things to eat. There was quite a lively contest between the boys when a handsome cake was put up to be voted for, to be given to the prettiest girl on the grounds. Miss Elva Hancock, of Charlotte county, secured the largest number of votes. Owing to the inclemency of the weath- home last Sunday. er the crowd was small. The sum of $18 or $20 was realized.

On Thursday afternoon there was a lawn party at Mr. Howard Selden's given in honor of Misses Virginia and Read Selden to their guests, Masters John Booker and Frank Baldwin, of Farmville, The lawn presented a pretty picture with the many children in bright costumes playing all sorts of childish games, and when they were invited in the dining room to partake of refreshments one of the town boys produced his camera and asked perand flowers.

There was a dance at Mr. Philip time. Yonge's on Wednesday night and another on Friday night at Mr. Selden's, The latter was a farewell dance given by the young people of the neighorhood to the "boys" who have been home for the last ten days on their annual visit, Messrs. Tom Yonge, Goodrich Overton and Fred Hunt. The parlors were well filled with the select dancers and the scene a most entrancing one. All the girls were levely evening costumes, the gentlemen in full dress suits, and such music as only Messrs. Worsham and Booker, of H. S. College, can make; they were not allowed even to stop between sets, but the "two step" was followed by other round dances until the prompter would call out, "partners for next set take their places.'

We country tolks were treated to a real cake walk by one of Farmville's fairest girls. I am requested to give the names of those present: Misses Minnie, Belle and Mary Yonge, Kate Verser, of Farmville, Annie Allen, Flora Mosby, of Culpeper, Indie and Hermie Overton, Maggie and Elva Hancock, Elto Swan, Freda, Pattie and Virginia Selden. The gentlemen were Sam, John and Goodrich Overton, Tom Yonge, Fred Hunt, Emmett Womack, Messrs. Hancock, E. T. Lipscomb, H. and J. Allen, Mr. Booker, Marcellus Harris, B. J. Worsham, Jr., and others, whose names I cannot now

There were also two names presented for the House of Delegates. field under these circumstances. I They were Hon. J. J. Owen and Capt.

The courthouse was filled to its doors with party men from all over the district and never did enthusiasm reach a higher tension. Speeches were made by Judge Watkins in advocacy of Mr. Mr. James H. Gray, of Petersburg, Owen, and by Major Venable for Capwas in Farmville yesterday visiting tain Morton and Mayor Blanton. A ballot was taken first as to the House candidates, which resulted in Mr. Owen er of Third and North streets for a receiving 96 and Captain Morton 50

The ballot was next spread on instructions for County Chairman and Captain Burton received 87 and Mr. Blanton 66 votes.

Delegates were appointed and instructed to vote in the County Convention in accordance with the above results. The delegates are Dr. Winston, W. T. Blanton, J. W. Overton and C. B. Cunningham.

The District Committee was elected as follows: Dr. W. E. Anderson, L. J. Verser, J. F. Walton, J. V. Rice and E E. Hundley,

Mr. Owen's nomination for the House of Delegates is now assured. In fact, since the withdrawal of Captain John R. Morton, announcement of which is printed elsewhere in the HER-ALD, there is no opponent to Mr. Owen.

The primary Tuesday night demonstrated the fact that oratory has not fled from the land. The nominating speeches of Judges Flournov and Watkins were of a high order of excellence, while Major Venable, who always begins by saying that he is no speaker, invariably makes a strong presentation of his cause.

Judge Flournoy's tribute to the old Confederate soldler glowed with the fire of the charge, and we could see the flashes leaping from the eyes of Comrades Miller and Paulett while it was being delivered.

It was Talmage who said, " Next to the luxury of making a good speech is that of listening to one."

The Fair Again.

The procession is moving and the show will open on time-the "greatest on earth," to be technically correct. The advertising committee has been particularly active of late, and every nook and corner of this section is being invaded with attractive display matter.
